I've been studying profiles for a while now, we certainly are a diverse bunch! I can't count how many times someone has mentioned we should exploit the resources within our own group.
Check out the "Classmate Services" for a few that I already have cards for, and some I don't have cards for.
If you have a service or job you would like to boast about, send me an email with a couple lines, or a picture of a card along with email address or facebook address and phone number.
The info shown in the "Classmate Services" is from the business cards I received for the 40th Reunion Memory Book and recently. Let me know if any info has changed.

The Saints Luncheon has been a success since we began over a year ago. One day a new face shows up for lunch, none other than John Fynes. He came in to see what the luncheons were all about. Well he comes a couple more times and the shows up with "Jeff", a wooden laser cut figure. This is "cool"! Each time after that he brings in something else. We've been giving them to classmates, the response has been very good.

John is continuing to experiment with materials and designs, eventually we'll have a souvenir(s) to sell at the events and reunions. Proceeds will go for events etc.

Here is the first Jeff. 6 1/2" tall

Here is the first Jeff, different material, a little different size and a "69". John continues to experiment with this one.

Here's a key chain, 1 3/4" tall. John is experimenting with this to accommodate a hard ring instead of a chain. And wants to use a different material.

Here's some fun stuff, shot glass and wine glass holders. Not a new invention, but no one has a Saint on theirs.

This one is a great creation. It's the combined efforts of John and Teresa (Snyder) Crane, "TC", our poem girl.

Just testing the product for myself.
I'm surprised I got all the shot glasses back after testing this one.
